

Ani DiFranco Sings

By

Diane Meholick

Yesterday they told me the way it would be
Didn't care at all what I thought
Said we don't need you anymore
You know your way to the door
Don't ask any questions on your way out
We won't answer anyway
Times are what they are. And
We can't see very far.
They're sure I understand.
They want to shake my hand.
But I don't understand.
I don't understand.
I wasn't born with gold in my hand
I'm not at all like them
Born into privilege, fortunate sons
They know they'll always be the ones
Snap their fingers and we all jump
To get them what they want
They rule over all they see
They rule over me.
They're sure I understand.
They want to shake my hand.
But I don't understand.
I don't understand.
I don't want wealth and privilege
And all that comes with it
I just want what is fair
I want someone to care
Look at what they're doing to the earth
Watch it as it dies
Look at what they're doing to us
Who the hell can we trust?
They're sure I understand.
They want to shake my hand.
But I don't understand.
I don't understand.
Turn on the radio and there she is
Ani DiFranco sings
Listen and hear that she cares
About what they're doing out there
Yes, Ani cares.
She gives me hope.
She helps me cope.
Yes, she gives me hope.
She gives me hope.
She gives me hope.
She gives me hope.

